from the chair

Arts OutWest enjoyed many successes in 2019.

Under the leadership of Executive Director, Tracey Callinan, AOW staff and Board members, work hard to support, advocate and promote the Arts across the eleven member L.G.A's. Utilising all funding opportunities has ensured AOW was able to deliver around 40 projects whilst promoting the Arts across our region.

Projects included art and music sessions in Health facilities including hospitals and MPS facilities under the direction of the Arts and Health Co-ordinator Christine McMillan. This program has seen a great response across the health sector. Another highlight was the development of a tourism app for Cowra, centred on the experiences at the prisoner-of-war camp and cemetery. AOW, in partnership with Bathurst and Penrith theatres, developed playwriting projects and has continued the ongoing delivery of curating Aboriginal artwork for the Kew-Y-Ahn Gallery in Hartley managed by National Parks. Staff and Board members were fortunate to attend Artstate Tamworth, the third in a four-year project by Regional Arts NSW, showcasing excellence in regional arts practice.

The two-year changeover to a skills-based Board as well as an Advisory Council has been successfully completed. Our strong skills based Board members contribute fully, work collaboratively, volunteer for selection panels or undertake skills training. This team shows strong support for other Board members as well as the Executive Director, Tracey Callinan, and all staff of Arts OutWest. I thank all my Board colleagues and the staff of AOW for their ongoing work and commitment this year. I would particularly like to thank Sharon Wilcox for her hard work and wise council as Vice Chair for more than a decade as an AOW Board member - you will be missed.

Despite the challenges of drought and bushfires, the organisation finished the year in good shape demonstrating an ability to tackle any crisis effectively and positively. Together the Arts OutWest team continues to seek additional opportunities to further the arts in our region.

Well done everyone.

STRATEGIC AREAS OF ACTIVITY

- 2019 was the final year of working to the strategic plan that was developed for the period commencing in 2016.
- A new plan has commenced in 2020.

governance

In 2019 the process of putting a skills-based board in place was completed.

Board members now take a position on the board after going through an application process that is open to anyone living in the Arts OutWest area. The process ensures that we have a variety of skills and expertise. Fran Charge chairs the team which includes people with expertise in finance, human resources, strategic development, Aboriginal culture, museums, marketing, business, local government, arts management and arts practice. Fran is a Pastoral Company Director, Educator, works in Arts and Health, has facilitated 5 Public Art works in Oberon and is Chair of Oberon Arts Council Inc.

The Arts OutWest Advisory Council is also operating successfully. This group consists of a member from each of our council areas plus Charles Sturt University.

Under the guidance of Advisory Council Chair Carly Brown from Weddin Council, the members each represent the interests of their area to help shape our delivery plan and our priorities.

adverse camber

In 2019 Arts OutWest worked with three Welsh storytellers who came to Australia with leading UK storytelling organisation Adverse Camber.

In a residency of almost three weeks the group presented their production Dreaming the Night Field at BMEC and a series of performances of Welsh stories and music in venues throughout the region.

They conducted workshops with CSU students and with the community, and did a cultural exchange about storytelling at the Wiradjuri Study Centre in Condobolin.

The project linked into Big Skies Collaboration in which the arts and science have been connecting through astronomy and the theme of the sky.
